There is a grocer in Rochester who is said to be so mean that he was once to catch a fly off his counter, hold him up by his legs, and look at the crack of his feet to see if he hadn't been stealing some of his sugar.
A gentleman having engaged a bricklayer to make some repairs in his cellar, ordered the job to be removed before the bricklayer commenced his work. "Oh, I am not afraid of a barrel of ale," said the man. "I presume not," said the gentleman, "but I shall be afraid of a barrel of ale if you are." "I shall be afraid of a barrel of ale if you are."—Williamsport Breakfast Table.
The Rev. Jim Green received a call from a Galveston colored congregation, provided he gave satisfaction. Last Sunday he preached his last sermon. After it was over he walked home with Uncle Mose, who is celebrated for his candor. "Dat ar congregation," said the Rev. Green, patronizingly, "is composed of de finest looking body of men I ever saw." "Ef dat ar is your opinion, you should nebbber hab called em 'brilliant brethren.'" "Why not, Uncle Mose?" "Because you don't look like you belonged to de family." There now exists a polar wave, or a glacial period, between Uncle Mose and the new pastor, and there is some talk of a hostile meeting with brickbats.—Galveston News.
Dr. R. is an eminent physician of Philadelphia, and is often the case with eminent physicians, is brusque and overbearing in manner. Among his office patients one morning was a gentleman who, after consulting exactly five minutes of the great man, took a ten-dollar note from his pocket and inquired the amount of the fee. "Fifty dollars," said the impatient medical man. The patient demurred a little, whereupon the physician rudely remarked: "Well, what do you expect to pay? Give me what you have got," and on receiving the ten-dollar bill, turned scornfully to his negro servant, and handing the money, remarked: "That's for you, Jim," but his temper still more when his patient coolly said: "I did not know before that you had a partner. Good morning, doctor."—Boston Commercial Bulletin.
FOR THE SAKS OF HARMONY.
"I am no more guilty of crime than an angel in heaven," explained one of the Territorial prisoners in the Detroit House of Correction, when interviewed the other day.
"But you got a sentence of five years just the same."
"So I did, but it was undeserved, and unequalled, and I shall live to make them all humble themselves at my feet."
"Horse stealing, wasn't it?"
